

Scott Daniel

Scott Daniel is a Brooklyn-based artist, working in contemporary forms and utilitarian objects such as hand-crafted lighting and furniture. Notable for his highly textural surfaces, Daniel is best known for innovating Cmesh™, a ceramic-coated metal mesh.

In his work, Scott chooses sensual materials that inspire tactile interaction. He balances the inherent imperfections of organic elements with the precision of machined components through the malleability of his innovative Cmesh.

Scott Daniel Design launched in 2010 in tandem with his material experiments inspired by the idea of alchemy. Scott transforms common substances into something of great value, allowing him to explore notions of sculpture, design and architecture while maintaining an intimate, hands-on approach.
